Workaholicism (Workaholicism) is a condition where a person is excessively devoted to their work, often at the expense of their health and personal life. This condition is characterized by a compulsive need to work, often leading to burnout, stress, and physical health problems. Workaholics often find it difficult to relax and may experience guilt or anxiety when they are not working. This condition can be caused by a variety of factors, including a strong sense of duty, a desire for perfection, and a lack of social support. Workaholicism is a serious condition that can have significant negative impacts on a person's life. It is important to recognize the signs and symptoms of workaholicism and seek help if you or someone you know is struggling with this condition.
