The screenshot shows the Google Assistant interface on a mobile device. At the top, there are tabs for 'Social', 'Promotions', and 'Updates'. Below these, a list of reminders is displayed, including 'Trip to Cairngorms National Park', 'Surf Sunday?', 'Best Japanese Restaurant in Seattle', 'Book Club', 'Work Presentation', 'Work Business Trip', 'Hiking this weekend', 'Mike's surprise birthday dinner', 'Cooking classes', and 'Pictures from board game last night'. A red box highlights the 'Snooze until...' menu that appears when a reminder is interacted with. The menu options are: 'Later today' (Wed. 6:00 PM), 'Tomorrow' (Thu. 8:00 AM), 'This weekend' (Sat. 8:00 AM), 'Next week' (Mon. 8:00 AM), 'Someday', and 'Pick a date & time'.

Confidential mode in Gmail

Confidential mode in Gmail is a feature that allows you to send sensitive information securely. When you enable Confidential mode, the email content is encrypted and only the intended recipient can view it. This feature is available for Gmail accounts that are part of a Google Workspace organization. To use Confidential mode, you need to be the sender of the email. The recipient will receive a notification that the email is in Confidential mode and will be prompted to verify their identity before they can view the content. The dialog box in the screenshot shows the expiration date and the verification method (Standard or Require SMS passcode). Confidential mode is a useful tool for protecting sensitive information in email.

Account Has Been Disabled

This email is a phishing attempt. The sender is 'safety@shutterstock.com' and the subject is 'Account Has Been Disabled'. The email contains a red warning banner and a link to 'https://www.shutterstock.com/account/reactivation'. This is a common phishing tactic to trick users into resetting their password and providing their card information. Do not click the link or provide any information.
