

Samsung has announced the launch of its new smart refrigerators, the Samsung Family Hub. The refrigerators are available in two finishes: Stainless and Black Stainless. The Black Stainless finish is a new addition to Samsung's product line. The refrigerators feature a large touchscreen display on the right-hand door, which allows users to view recipes, manage their calendar, and control other smart home devices. The refrigerators are also equipped with a variety of smart features, including a built-in camera that allows users to check on their food from their smartphone, and a built-in water and ice dispenser. The refrigerators are available for purchase starting in the spring.

Samsung's new smart refrigerators are part of the company's broader smart home ecosystem. The refrigerators are compatible with Samsung's SmartThings connected devices, which allows users to control their refrigerators from their smartphone. The refrigerators are also compatible with other smart home devices, such as smart lights and smart thermostats. Samsung's smart home ecosystem is designed to make it easier for users to manage their smart home devices.
