

48 28

Internet is a global network of computers and servers that are connected to each other. It allows users to share information and resources across the world.

Internet is a global network of computers and servers that are connected to each other. It allows users to share information and resources across the world.

Internet is a global network of computers and servers that are connected to each other. It allows users to share information and resources across the world.

Internet is a global network of computers and servers that are connected to each other. It allows users to share information and resources across the world.

Internet is a global network of computers and servers that are connected to each other. It allows users to share information and resources across the world.

Internet is a global network of computers and servers that are connected to each other. It allows users to share information and resources across the world.

