1-1. The Point of View

The point of view is the perspective from which a story is told. It is the narrator's position relative to the events and characters in the story. The point of view can be first person, second person, or third person. The point of view can also be omniscient, which means the narrator knows everything about the story.

The point of view is an important element of a story. It determines how the reader sees the events and characters. The point of view can be used to create a sense of intimacy with the characters or to provide a broader perspective on the story. The point of view can also be used to create a sense of mystery or suspense.
