Microsoft Quick Assist is a free app that lets you get help from someone you trust or help someone else. It works over a remote connection, so you can share your computer screen and control it from another location. This is useful for solving problems, such as installing software or updating drivers. To get started, you'll need a 6-digit security code that was provided to you. This code is used to establish a secure connection between the two computers. Once the connection is established, you can see and control the other person's computer. This is done through a secure, encrypted connection.
